JOHN GORDON BURIED.

Funeral Yesterday and Military

Honors Accorded the Dead. The funeral of the late John Gordon was held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It was under the direction of William H. Davies post, No. 187, Grand Army of the Republic, of which the deceased was a member. He was buried with military honors. The easket was draped in the flag he had fought so long and so hard to defend. Services were held in the church of St. Rose and in terment was made in St. Rose's cametery, where the ritual of the Grand Army was observed. The firing squad fired a salute of three volleys over the grave. The pallbearers were selected from the post as follows: W. B. Chase, Michael Bell, Frank Sherrer, Martin Mannion, James Lynady, Owen Gil-martin. The wreaths of laurel and roses were carried by Hon. John Kelly, George Hudson and William Geary. The post met afterward and took appropriate action on the death of their comrade, reciting his record and expressing sympathy with the bereaved.

WORK ON RIVER STREET.

Contractor Collins Hustling the Wall. The New Gas Main.

Contractor William Collins commenced work vesterday on the retaining wall on the river north of Sixth avenue. He has a large force of men at work and already great progress has been made. If the same energy is displayed throughout the job it will be completed in a very short time. The beauty of that section will be greatly enhanced when this is done and the street paved.

The gas company is now at work putting down the new main, before the paving is commenced. The company announces that in view of proposed changes in the plant it will be able to sell gas very much cheaper after a and advises the River street residents to connect their houses now with the main, so that the pavement will not have to be torn up later,

TORPEDO BOATS.

United States Now Has Fleet Equal to Spain.

From the New York Sun. The United States torpedo flotilia ha become within a few weeks a formidable part of the navy. Had the war with Spain opened during the winter the enemy would have had an immense advantage because of her strong fleet of torpedo boats and torpedo boat de stroyers ready for immediate service Now that all our finished torpedo boats are in commission, several more are almost ready to go to sea, three have been purchased abroad and a number of fast yachts have been converted into torpedo boat destroyers. American naval officers say we have little to fear from Spanish torpedo boats. Everything considered, the American torpedo fleet is today superior to the Spanish, if the war is to be conducted n American waters only.

The torpjedo boat is limited in its ange of action. While the new torpedo boats are seagoing craft, their usefullness in the open sea is small. Only an officer of great daring would volunteer to take the finest torpedo boat on the seas across the Atlantic unaccompanied by a cruiser or seagoing battleship. Even when in company with large vessels torpedo craft have rough times in the open sea. None but those of the largest type have sufficient coal capacity for a journey across the Atlantic, and a few days of rough weather would probably leave even these in midocean without a lump of coal in their bunkers. Torpedo boats which must be taken across the ocean are coaled at sea at intervals from seagoing vessels accompanying them.

The accidents to the new boat Somers, purchased in England by the United States government, illustrate the instability of torpedo craft. Several times she has put out to sea, in company with the new cruiser Topeka, only to be forced to turn back to port. She has run into a dock, injuring her steering gear and indenting her sides. A torpedo boat is a mere cockle shell. Her steel skin is a small fraction of an inch in thickness, and only by heavy steel bracing is it made to withstand ordinary pressure. A few days ago the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Audaz in English waters was struck athwartships by a heavy swell, turning her bow around double like a sheet of tin. The thin shell necessary to give the lightness required for 25 and 30 knot speed. The smallest or rapidfire guns will penetrate this thin steel. Only two torpedo fleets have ever ventured across the Atlantic. Half a dozen torpedo boats steamed from England to Brazil during the recent Brazilian civil war, in company with sev eral armed merchantmen, but Mar shal Peixoto found the little craft in poor condition for service when they were docked at Rio Janeiro. It was weeks before the damage to the boats could be repaired, but when they were again fit for service, they proved the
